Curling Alberta Announces Cancellation of the 2021 Competitive Season

After careful consideration, Curling Alberta has made the difficult decision to cancel the remaining sanctioned competitions and training opportunities for the 2020 - '21 season outright. A large part of this decision was a result of the uncertainty in the current pandemic environment and respect for local curling clubs.

“In light of last week’s announcement from our provincial government that current public health restrictions will remain in place with no timeline on any meaningful relaxations, we felt that this is the most responsible decision on behalf of our organization and stakeholders,” commented Jill Richard, Curling Alberta’s Executive Director. “We did not make this decision lightly, but our safety, as well as the collective interests of our communities and local curling clubs are our priorities. In making this decision, we will bolster our support to clubs who are also faced with difficult business decisions and focus on emerging opportunities and preparations for next season with a measure of clarity.”

The process for naming Curling Alberta’s representatives at the 2021 national championship in the masters and seniors categories will be announced as soon as possible.

Although Curling Alberta’s competitions are cancelled for the remainder of the season, the organization is committed to continue its work on behalf of the sport so that we, as a curling community, will be stronger in the future. Please keep your eyes on our website and social media for updates. An exciting announcement regarding Curling Alberta’s involvement in Curing Canada’s Hub City will be released shortly.
